Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm will master catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. All druggists sell the 50 cent size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.
The Balm is used without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.
Ely's Cream Balm contains no cocaine, mercury nor other harmful drugs.

A PIECE OF STRING.

It Plays a Prominent Part In the Life of Japan.

Writing from Japan, an American says: "You must come here to appreciate some of the quaint customs and usages which contact with other peoples has not yet driven out. To read about them gives you only a poor idea. For instance, did you ever know what an important thing a piece of string is here? The children, workmen, idlers, servants, all carry pieces of string for use in case of emergency. With us the emergency would arise only when a parcel had to be done up, but the Jap uses his piece of string as a first aid to the injured, to repair a rent in his clothing, to fix a broken down jinrikisha, to mend tools, to take measurement, and, in fact, the string is his universal tool chest. The queerest use to which it is put, according to my way of thinking, is when a police officer arrests a man, ties a bit of string about the arrested man's wrist and then leads him by the loose end of the thin hempen fetter to the lockup. You ask, 'Why doesn't the Jap crook break the string and find a gateway?' He could, but he would not. That's where his respect for the law comes in, and the bit of string holds the man as securely as though he were manacled by our own humane chilled steel, nickel plated and snap locked method."—New York Tribune.

DIRTY WATCHES.

The Reason Is Often to Be Found in the Watch Pocket.

"Why do watches get dirty?" said the jeweler. "You'll find the answer in your watch pocket. Turn it out."

The patron turned out his watch pocket, sheepishly bringing forth a pinch of mud colored dust, some lint and a small ball of black fluff.

"There's the reason," said the jeweler. "Watches get dirty because the pockets they are carried in are never clean. A watch pocket, my dear sir, should be cleaned out regularly once a week. Observe that rule and your watch's works will not get clogged up again.

"Another and a seasonable rule is never to lay your watch down on stone or marble. The cold deranges the delicate works.

"Never lay your watch down, in fact, anywhere. Hang it up on a hook vertically in the same position it occupies when in your pocket. Watches are made to lie, or, rather, stand, in that position only.

"Wind your watch in the morning, never at night."—New York Press.

Cigarettes as Wedding Fee.

As one of Manila's leading young men was donning his evening suit preparatory to keeping a social engagement he ran his hand into his pocket and was surprised to find an envelope there. On opening it he discovered 25 pesos in bills. "Now, where in thunder did I take on all this money?" he said. "It isn't mine, for I never carry my bills around in an envelope." Then he sat down to think where he had worn the suit and how he had come by the 25 pesos. "The last place I wore it," he mused finally, "was when I was best man at a wedding a month ago. But I gave Dr. Rossiter his money. I remember distinctly giving him something, and it must have been his fee. If I didn't give him the money, what in the world did I give him?" He called up Dr. Rossiter by phone. "Do you mind telling me," he asked, "what I gave you for a fee at Blank's wedding?" The answer came back very distinctly and cuttingly: "Young man, you gave me a box of vile smelling cigarettes."—Philippine Gossip.

Arbiter and Arbitrary.

If an arbitrator is chosen to end a dispute, says the London Chronicle, there is no reason to dread that his decision would be arbitrary, though the two words are very near relatives. An arbiter, the Latin word which used to be more common as English than it is now, meant by derivation simply "one who went to" something to examine it, and so at first a spectator or witness. Then in Roman law it assumed the technical sense of an umpire. But a "judicum," the legal decision in a case with regard to a definite sum of money, for instance, was distinguished from an arbitrium, a legal decision as to an uncertain sum which had to be determined; hence arbitrary acquired the sense of uncertain, capricious.

It Was Plain Enough.

A college professor who recently returned with his wife from their honeymoon greatly amused a company of people in his home town, according to the Lewiston Journal, by assuring them, on being questioned concerning their trip, that nobody where they spent their honeymoon suspected that they were bride and groom.

"What kind of a place was it you were in?" the president of the college asked. "An institution for the blind?"

Economical Woman.

Of small economies the following will be difficult to beat for smallness: A laboring man who hands over his weekly wages to his wife is allowed by her an ounce of tobacco a week. She buys it herself in two separate half ounces in order, she declares, to get the advantage of the two turns of the scale.—London Chronicle.

A Brutal Definition.

Knicker—What is a philanthropist? Bocker—A man who gives what he doesn't need in a way nobody wants.—New York Sun.

There is nothing so powerful as truth—and often nothing so strange.—Webster.

Turning The Tide.

By W. F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"The tide will turn some day," said Alva hopefully as she stirred the sugar in her tea with a carefully cleaned palette knife and then buttered her bread with the same utensil. "There is always a turn of the tide."

Sally Peterson shook her tiny small head vigorously. "There is bound to be a turn—when you turn it. My dear, nothing succeeds in this big town like success."

"But you must first gain success, and that is not something so easily gained."

"Nonsense," declared Sally oracularly. "Men and women are too busy to inquire if success is real. Look at the way I got ahead. It was all a bluff."

"A bluff?" Alva's eyes were wide open. "You sinful child, I know to my own knowledge of three checks you've had this week."

"Now, yes," said Miss Peterson disdainfully. "I mean when I began. I was on the verge. I was stopping at a place more expensive than I could afford because one of the assistant editors on a big magazine stopped there too.

"I thought I could land him with some of my stuff, but he fought shy of it. Then one day I got a check for $100 from another magazine. I don't mind admitting that it was commission on a lot of subscriptions I had turned in. The editor at our hotel didn't know that when he cashed the check, as I asked him to, and his eyes bulged. My dear, I sent myself that same check four times in the next week and sold my editorial friend two stories on the strength of my success."

"But where could I get a check?" demanded Alva. Sally smiled.

"I'll back you. Get out of this cheap boarding house into a good locality. Rent a good studio and leave the rest to me. I'll find the right sort of boarding house for you. Why, from this address alone they would know that you were a struggling artist and despise you accordingly."

There were other but less important details to be settled, and it was the end of the week before Alva found herself established at a fashionable address, enjoying the novelty of her surroundings and yet still fearful of the success of the scheme. For what her boarding place and studio now cost each week she could have lived for two months in the old way.

The second day a check came in an envelope with a fashionable address. Even the waitress was more deferential as she brought Alva her breakfast, and the landlady beamed when asked to cash the check. Other checks followed, and almost before she knew it Alva was being asked for invitations to her studio.

Her work was good, and soon real checks came in with orders for work, and Sally Peterson, who was using the fact that she was writing up society women for one of the Sunday papers to get the checks, no longer cudgeled her wits to keep up the supply. It has been easy to ask for a check for cash on the plea she had to send some money to a friend, and checks were easier than money orders.

Alva was still uncertain. From Puritan ancestors she had inherited odd notions of right and wrong, and it did not seem fair to sell to her patrons pictures that a few weeks ago had been regarded with supercilious scorn by the dealers to whom she submitted them. Under Sally's assiduous coaching she was becoming used to it, largely because there was no way out of it. It was not until Geoffrey Marsden appeared upon the scene that her protest against the slight deceit became strong.

Marsden was a clean cut young fellow, far less aware of the importance of his millions than were most of his associates. He was doing squire duty to some of his friends at one of Alva's studio teas. Thereafter the young man became a frequent visitor to the cozy studio with the simple lettering "Miss Valihall" in black upon the door.

Marsden was not one to let the grass grow under his feet, and in less than three months he had proposed marriage. For an instant Alva's soul seemed filled with gladness, then she remembered with sinking heart that the success which had attracted her lover was all a sham, a fabrication of Sally Peterson and herself. Gently she withdrew the hand he was pressing to his lips and rose from her chair.

"I am sorry," she said dully. "I did not realize whither we were drifting. It was wrong of me to permit matters to go so far. Forgive me."

She raised her big, lustrous eyes to his white, tense face and held out her hand in token of dismissal.

"Is it that you do not love me?" he urged. "Is it because of some fault of mine that you say no?" he asked. "You can learn to love me, dear. The fault might be explained away."

"No, no," she cried. "It is not that. It is because—I cannot explain. Please do not ask me to explain." She pushed him from her and sank sobbing upon the Turkish divan.

For a moment Marsden watched her undecidedly. He longed to take her in his arms and comfort her, to insist upon an explanation in the hope of clearing away the trouble; but, manlike, he could not combat tears, so he stole softly out.

Alva heard him go, and she gave way to a fresh accession of grief, which presently exhausted her, and she fell into troubled slumber.

From her sleep she was roused by a knocking upon the door, and almost before she realized she had called out "Come in," and Geoffrey stood before her.

"I met that little friend of yours down the street," he explained awkwardly, "and she called me a fool for leaving you before I found out what the trouble was, so I came back," he added.

"I begged you not to ask," Alva reminded tremulously.

"But Miss Peterson said to insist," he countered. "She is a tremendously clever little woman."

"I am sorry I ever met her," cried Alva passionately. "Then I might have been a success upon my own account and not a creature of deceit. Can you love me knowing that my success is wholly false, an acted lie?"

"You mean that some one else paints your pictures?" he demanded. "I don't care about the pictures. It's you I want, little girl. I don't care who did the pictures."

"It's not so bad as that!" she cried, shocked at the suggestion. And then, slowly and sobbingly, she told, bit by bit, how she and Sally had turned the tide. The sun set and darkness settled down, yet neither seemed aware of the gathering dust.

"And that's how my success was gained," cried Alva as the recital was concluded. "Now you understand why I cannot marry you. You, with your upright business ways, would forever despise me."

"It's merely advertisement," said Marsden, with a laugh. "Is this the dreadful skeleton in the closet that is to keep us forever apart?"

"Isn't it enough?" she demanded miserably.

"Do you know how the Marsden soap works were started?" he asked.

"We're making soap for all the world now, and good soap too. But the first factory was a kettle in our back yard. We all used to work it in the evenings, and during the day we three boys, Eddie and my brother George, who died, used to go into groceries and ask for the soap, and father would sell them a box, and that box would bring new orders. Success creates success. We, too, turned the tide."

"And don't you hate me for the deception?" she asked in a whisper.

"Hate you?" he repeated tenderly. "As though I could ever hate you, dear! I am most profoundly grateful to Miss Peterson for making you a discovery so early. Think of the happy years we might have missed."

"It seemed almost dishonest," she whispered. "I thought"—

But Marsden stopped her words with a kiss.

"We have turned the tide again," he said. "Let us not think of the tides that have ebbed and flowed."

Fireproofed by Water.

"Did you ever see wood what would not burn?" said the sailor.

"Oh, yes. There's brier, pipe brier, you know, and there's ironwood and there's"—

But the sailor interrupted impatiently. "No, no," he said. "I mean ordinary wood, pine, this here."

And he drew from his pocket a piece of ancient looking pine. He applied several matches to it, and, as he predicted, the flame would not consume, but only blackened it a little.

"This piece of pine," he said, "has a strange story. It was fireproofed by water. It was part of a whaleboat, and once when a harpoon was stuck into a big whale the line fouled, the men all jumped for their lives and the whale made a mad plunge downward, draggin' the boat down behind it. Down, down, it went. They thought it would never come up again. It made a lot of these terrific plunges and dives, then it dashed off faster 'n lightnin', but it died in the end, and the whaler's men got it, and they got back their boat too.

"The wood of the boat was all like this here, hard as iron. What had hardened it was the pressure of the water. Scientific codgers said the whale must have carried the boat down half a mile or more to change the fiber of the wood like that."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Symbols That Express Affection.

What a humdrum old world this would be if it were not for the symbols! Turkey at Thanksgiving, the stockings hung at the blind fireplace or over the back of a chair at Christmas, the rabbits and eggs at Easter, the pennies under one's plate on his birthday—these old make believes generally sweeten our lives and make us better, gentler and stronger men and women. So when a wedding comes into our circle and we all work ourselves ill over the preparations, either making gowns and decorating the church or earning money to buy material and maintain the family pride with our gifts, when all this is over and the bride's mother has cried and the guests have told what a sweet little girl she was, then we gather with laughter in our eyes and a tug at our hearts and throw rice and old shoes and all sorts of foolishness after the two who are looking so hopefully into the high noon of their lives. It is all symbolical. Surely it is more worth while than the firecrackers of the Fourth of July. Maybe it is as much so as the Thanksgiving day turkey or the Easter rabbit.—Washington Times.

Failed to Talk English.

A pleasant faced woman, cleanly and well dressed, occupied a seat on the immigrant train over the Pennsylvania railroad. Interpreter and passengers tried to converse with her in a dozen languages, but she only looked puzzled.

"What time does this train reach Braddock?" she asked the conductor in perfect English when the train reached Altoona. Her traveling companions had failed to talk English to her, the only language she knew.—Philadelphia Record.

MACBETH.

A Famous Actor's Views on the Sleepwalking Scene.

The first time I read this tragedy I expected to see the sleepwalking scene played by Macbeth instead of his wife. This scene occurs at the beginning of the fifth act, and not until the gentlewoman and the doctor converse together are we aware of the change in Lady Macbeth's character and of the illness that has made her weak. A woman so brutal in her conception and so resolute in her projects—how could she at once lose steadfastness, she who was capable of saying:

I would, while it was smiling in my face,
Have plucked my nipple from his boneless gums
And dashed the brains out.

Such a woman is capable of committing any crime without losing her impassiveness. I should have preferred not to see her, even in sleep, wash her hands of the murder of Duncan. Her wicked personality would have appeared still greater.

I do not believe that Shakespeare meant the sleepwalking scene for Lady Macbeth. Have you not noticed how precise the famous writer was in drawing his characters? He always tried to keep them in the same light from beginning to end. To my mind it seems impossible that Lady Macbeth should collapse like that. Instead it would be more natural in Macbeth. I found this scene so unnatural that I cut it out in my version.

The explanation may be something like this: In Shakespeare's day there were no women players. Perhaps some of the actors were not satisfied with the length of their respective parts. Shakespeare, to keep the peace, may have shortened Macbeth's speeches and given them to somebody else.

The tragedy of Macbeth is a sublime display of tragic passion, a pathetic picture of fate and evil conquering good. There is no moral, but without doubt this play may be regarded as the greatest work of dramatic literature.—Tommaso Salvini in Putnam's Monthly.

ENGLISH GHOST STORY.

A Vision That Saved a Life on the Yorkshire Dales.

It is not often that we hear of a ghost saving a man's life. There is, however, an instance, and it seems to be tolerably well authenticated, and materialists will hardly know how to account for it. Here is the story. It is of the Yorkshire dales and of a good many years ago. A clergyman whose duty lay in that wild country, where a strong race of men and women lived principally on bacon and oatcake and knew not save rarely butcher's meat, used to ride or walk to visit the people. He had been raising a subscription in a time of scarcity and had to be out late at night. One evening on his outward journey he suddenly became aware of a figure moving beside him, and in the gloaming he recognized his brother, who had died some time before. He was too awestruck for words, and after keeping by his side for some distance over the lonely moor the figure disappeared. He noted the time and the vision, but nothing occurred to throw any light upon it. However, some years after he had taken the duty at a jail in another part of the country one of the prisoners lying under sentence desired to make a confession. After telling him of a lot of crimes he said: "I wor very near once taking your life, sir. It was in that bad year, and I heerd as how you went carrying money about in those lonesome dales. I hid behind the big bowlders of the lawn moor. I saw you coming up and waited till you should be near enough, but that night you were not alone." This is a startling tale and the stronger because the vision or whatever it was was seen by two people. The anecdote occurs in an article twenty years ago in Macmillan's Magazine by Lady Verney.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompained with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE

Sonoma, Sonoma County, Cal., December 28, 1907

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

Will Sit Up and Notice.

Sonoma will make little 1908 sit up and take notice, for we have been doing things the past year and our city bids fair to be the Greater Sonoma. We can now prophecy with no great amount of bravado that some day all the country from here to Santa Rosa will be known as Greater Sonoma. That will come in the day of the electric railway lines which are destined to thread this section, and then our resorts will become as populous as those of Southern California and the county road will be graced with handsome bungalows on either side.

It is up to us to prepare ourselves for the coming of a greater city. We must get in line and be eligible. One of the first and most necessary things is to bond for a sewer system of some kind. We have to have that and it is coming soon. The Index-Tribune trusts that before 1908 passes from the cycle of time that the project will be well on its way to realization. Young 1908 will open his eyes all right and take notice at Sonoma's improvements, but he will sniff the air and wonder if the sanitary conditions will agree with his system. The City Hall will delight with its tiled roof and artistic lines and the views of the garden which the Woman's Club is to lay out around it will make the youth glow with proud satisfaction. The High School building, outwardly of commanding appearance and inwardly most roomy and convenient, will appeal to the scholarly sense as most excellent and a drawing card for Sonoma Valley as a residence section.

So with other improvements which have made 1907 a memorable year. May they go on and may prosperity, health and happiness come to the many staunch friends of the Index-Tribune during 1908.

The Old Pavilion.

The curfew tolls the bell ; it's on its way
That landmark we have known for aye and aye.
Pavilion, City Hall and bastile jail,
Methinks I hear just one silurian wail.
It's passing fills his hardened heart with woe,
The tribute to his way is doomed to go.
No more its rotund, massive form,
Will creak and tremble at each passing storm ;
No more the swallow in the tower there
Will guard the sleeping city fair.
The City Fathers gaze in sad review,
How strange to other quarters to skidoo !
The City Marshal will feel strange indeed,
When on that very spot the cows will feed.
Where once in pride that little hall spread out,
The weeds will grow and grass begin to sprout ;
Where once the Judge held courtly sway,
'Tis but a memory now of yesterday.
'Tis going, going, gone, yes auctioned off,
That old Pavilion that did make us scoff.

Free Market Opportunity.

The big opportunity which the projected free market in San Francisco will give to our growers and producers is not being overlooked by the Glen Ellen Grange, which is now making inquiry as to just what inducements will further the shipment of produce from this section. After a vigorous fight for the establishment of the market it is now an assured fact and our farmers, led by the progressive Grange, are anxious to take advantage of it. For years the consumer has been stood up and while an outraged public thought the farmer was getting rich the retailer waxed fat and in many instances the producer's returns were little or nothing, while the consumer was charged outrageous prices. Now, that there is a probability of our farmers managing their own business there will be new activity and better prices. It takes combined effort to cut in now days on almost any commercial deal and Glen Ellen Grange is looking out for Sonoma Valley in this instanec.

Reform is doing things in San Francisco. This is emphasized when one contemplates that ex-Mayor Schmitz, millionaire Louis Glass and bankers Dalzell Brown and Bartnet dined together in the County Jail on Christmas day. The bill of fare was roast pig, apple auce and plum duff.

Directions to Prepare Simple, Yet Remarkable Home Mixture.

A well-known authority on rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home :

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

WHAT'S

worth doing is worth doing well. If you wish to be cured of Rheumatism, use Ballard's Snow Liniment and you will be "well cured". A positive cure for Sprains, Neuralagia, Bruises, Contracted Muscles and all the ills that flesh is heir to. A. G. M. Williams, Navasota, Texas, writes :

"I have used Snow Liniment for sprained ankle and it gave the best of satisfaction. I always keep in the house."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of deafness (caused by Cartarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a costitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

United States Court of Claims

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.

THE DEADLY SPINAL MENINGITIS.

Carries Off Two Children and Three More in the Family May Not Survive.

There was no Christmas cheer in the little home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hiser this yuletide. Instead the grim monster stalked across their threshold and claimed two of the five children in the family as his own, and the three remaining children are in a precarious condition, and the once happy home is enshrouded in gloom.

About ten days ago little nine-year-old Ralph Hiser was stricken down with spinal meningitis. The disease baffled medical skill and in four days the little fellow died. This was on Friday of last week. On Monday little Elsie, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiser, who had been stricken down with the deadly disease four days previously, also passed away.

The other three children in the family, the eldest being 14 years, have each in turn been attacked by the disease and although the doctors are working heroically to save them their lives are all but despaired of.

The funeral of the little Ralph took place Sunday and that of little Elsie the day after Christmas. The children were laid side by side in the Mountain Cemetery.

DR. SPRAGUE HERE FROM THE MINES.

Something About the Rich Placer Claims in Which Sonoma People are Interested.

Dr. Fred. F. Sprague arrived in town from his mines in Esmeralda county, Nevada, Tuesday, and will spend the holidays with his family here. He was the last man to hike ont of the Lappan Meadows in the Mt. Grant mining district. He made his way out of the meadows by way of the Big Injun mine on improvised snow shoes, a distance of twenty-five miles in a blinding snow storm. When he left the mines, which are high up in the mountains, last Saturday, the thermometer was way below zero, and every mine in that part of the district had closed down for the winter weeks before.

The mines in which he is part owner, consist of four placer claims and two quartz lodes. The latter, which look very promising, have not as yet been prospected, work on the mines the past four months, since they were acquired by purchase by Dr. Sprague, Dr. Thomson and Frank Weaver of this place and W. Bradbury of Bodie, being confined to the placer ground. The work done on the placer claims, which was only preliminary to mining them on a big scale next spring, shows them to be very rich. Many nuggets valued at between $1 and $15 were washed out within a few feet of the surface besides $600 or $700 in finer gold was sluiced out. The mines are unquestionably rich and ought to net the owners independent fortunes. The only drawback is the shortness of the season, which permits the mines to be worked from May to November, and the paucity of water. Were the placers located in California instead of rainless Nevada they could be depended upon to yield between $25,000 to $50,000 for each season's run.

However, it is expected to overcome this drawback of lack of water by constructing a series of reservoirs for impounding and conserving the snow waters in the spring and early summer months. The meadows are a natural site for several reservoirs which can be built at small cost.

It is expected to resume work on the mines next May and sooner if weather conditions will permit.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goess of this place and the groom a young business man of San Francisco

The Turkey Raffle.

The turkey raffle held in the Dal Poggetto building last Saturday evening brought out a big crowd of people intent on getting a Christmas bird at small cost. The other fortunate winners were too numerous to mention and those who took a chance on every bird and came away empty-handed—well, that is another story.

Jack London's Safety is Feared.

The safety of Mr. and Mrs. Jack London is feared by their relatives and friends of Glen Ellen and Oakland. The steamer Mariposa which recently arrived from Honlulu failed to bring the usual mail from the celebrated author. The last heard of Mr. and Mrs. London was on October 7th. On that day they left Hilo in the Snark for Papeete, Tahiti. When the Mariposa touched at that place en ronte to San Francisco on December 8th, London and his little party had not been heard from and it is feared they were overtaken by a typhoon and that the little Snark was unable to weather the storm. The next mail from the islands is being anxiously looked forward to by London's relatives. But we predict that Jack, who has passed safely through many perils on both land and sea, will turn up all right on one of the many islands in that part of the Pacific.

Wise Talks by the Office Boy Repeated.

Well, well, we're getting some weather, all right, all right. Yesterday the boss paid $62.15 express charges on a bunch of cravenettes. We've been selling an awful lot of craveys this fall and these just arrived in time to keep our reputation as a cravenette house from sagging. There's about ten different patterns in this bunch—all the very latest and swellest kinds, and all Priestley's, too. They looked so good to me I just picked up one and tried it on, then I took a squint in the big glass, and then I just dug down for my pass-book and wrote a check for $12.50 (we have them as low as $12.50) and now I own a nice cravenette coat and you bet I am proud of it. Dear Ole Lunnon looks nearer to me by about 1000 miles and last night I dreamed that I was there and just about to take the Lusyanna Lou to come home when King Edward gave me the high sign, so I went to lunch with the King and Dick Croker. I tell you it pays to dress well.

SIGNS OF OLD AGE.

How a Man May Know When He Is No Longer Really Young.

They were arguing about the signs of approaching old age.

"Well, I'll tell you one thing," said one. "When a girl ceases to take a lively interest in you and doesn't mind your seeing her with her hair slightly untidy and listens to your conversation indulgently where formerly she manifested interest and sympathy, then you may know you are growing old."

"No," said another. "That isn't an infallible sign, because some young women show interest and sympathy to everybody. It's when your bones creak slightly on arising from a chair and you no longer swing on a moving car with full confidence and you walk up a flight of stairs a step at a time, then you are growing old."

"Not so," chimed in a third, "for young people with rheumatic diseases sometimes exhibit these signs. When the workings of your liver come to be of more importance that the affairs of your heart, then you are growing old."

"You are all wrong," announced a fourth. "When in pulling on your trousers in the early morning you are compelled to gain the support of the bedstead when you slip on the other leg—then—then—you are growing old!" —New York Press.

MADE ONE BLUNDER.

But to Square It an Offer of Generous Restitution Was Made.

In one of the northwestern states they like nothing better than to tell how a few years ago there came to that section of the Union a Boston newspaper man whose mission it was to "write up" lynching in that quarter, although it appeared that there had not been an illegal execution in the state for a long time. The natives took the questions of the eastern scribe in good part and even "jollied" him into believing that for downright lawlessness the community wherein he was for the moment sojourning was about the most conspicuous portion of the United States.

"Don't you ever make a mistake in these lynchings?" guilelessly asked the Bostonian—"that is, don't you ever lynch the wrong man?"

"That happened once," put in some one, "but we tried to do the square thing by the widow."

"Indeed!"

"Yes; we appointed a committee to inform the widow that the joke was on us, and we gave her the choice of the crowd for her second husband."—Lippincott's Magazine.

How She Rests.

In Germantown there dwells a family of ancient lineage which for years every summer has employed a colored woman named Liza as a cook while the family was at the shore. Sons and daughters have married and migrated, reared children and added to the branches of an already luxuriant family tree. On one occasion a number of these signified a desire to assemble again under the old roof. The old lady who now is the head of the family, seeing that special help was necessary, sent for Liza to come and help cook the dinner. Liza's answer was brief and dignified. "De winter am my vacation," she said, "an' den I doan' cook for nobody. In de winter I rests, an' all I does is washin' an' ironin'."—Philadelphia Record.

A Curt Reply.

A story is told of Professor Masson when editor of Macmillan's Magazine. It refers to the days when Kingsley and Newman were engaged in their famous pamphlet war. Conscious of the excellence of an article on the subject of the controversy which he had written in the magazine, Masson ventured to bring it under the notice of Newman, but he was not prepared for the reply he received, although he afterward spoke of it with philosophic humor. Newman's laconic message was in words such as these: "I have not heard of your magazine, and your name conveys no impression to my mind."—Westminster Gazette.

Heartfelt.

Lord Carrington when governor of New South Wales made his first public appearance at the mayor's dinner at Sydney. Having committed a few words to paper, he delivered them in reply to the toast of his health and then sat down, feeling very much satisfied with himself. Opposite to him there sat an M. P. who had suffered long from the abundant eloquence of the new governor's predecessor. When Lord Carrington sat down the man filled his glass to the brim and said, "Thank the Lord, he can't speak!"

Just a Spill.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the awkward waiter, "but was that last meal on you?"

"Not all of it, garcon," replied the guest as he meekly rubbed his much spattered trousers; "only the soup."—Pittsburg Press.

Lots of It.

"Initiative is the great thing that we all need and that most of us lack."

"Well, my husband has lots of it," replied Mrs. Gottawaddle. "He's initiated in something nearly every night." —Chicago Record-Herald.

Sensitive.

"Willie is so sensitive."

"Really?"

"Exceedingly so. When papa kicked him down the steps the last time he didn't call again for three weeks."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

While the world lasts fashion will lead it by the nose.—Cowper.

When to go Home.

From the Bluffton, Ind., Banner: "When tired out, go home. When you want consolation, go home. When you want fun go home When you want to show others that you have reformed, go home and let your family get acquainted with the fact. When you want to show yourself at your best go home and do the act there. When you feel like being extra liberal go home and practice on your wife and children first. When you want to shine with extra brilliancy go home and light up the whole household." To which we would add, when you have a bad cold go home and take Chamber ain's Cough Remedy and a quick cure is certain. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of deafness (caused by Cartarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

RHEUMATISM

When pains or irritation exist on any part of the body, the application of Ballard's Snow Liniment gives prompt relief. E. W. Sullivan, Prop., Sullivan House, El Reno, O. T., writes June 6, 1902: "I take pleasure in recommending Ballard's Snow Liniment to all who are afflicted with rheumatism. It is the only remedy I have found that gives immediate relief." 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Fighting Geese.

In Russia pits for cock fighting are unknown, but "goose pits" some sixty years ago were common throughout that mighty kingdom. The effect of this can be seen today in the geese which are indigenous to the country, the Arsamas and the Tula varieties particularly showing to a marked degree the fighting characters of their ancestors. The Arsamas gander has a bill which is entirely different in form from that of the geese known in any other part of the world. This special structure enables the bird to take a firm grip on the neck or back of its antagonist.

The Dear Friends.

Clara (exhibiting photograph)—How do you like it?

Hattie—It's perfectly lovely!

"You think it a good likeness?"

"Oh, no; it doesn't look a particle like you, you know. But I wouldn't mind that, Clara. You are not likely to have such wonderful luck again if you sat a thousand times!"—London Telegraph.

A Remedy.

"Yes," said Quiggles, "I have a good deal on my hands just now."

"So I perceive," replied Fogg. "Why don't you try a little soup and water?" —London Answers.

A Home Made Happy by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

About two months ago our baby girl had measles which settled on her lungs and at last resulted in a severe attack of bronchitis. We had two doctors but no relief was obtained. Everybody thought she would die. I went to eight different stores to find a certain remedy which had been recommended to me and failed to get it, when one of the storekeepers insisted that I try Chamberl in's Cough Remedy I did so and our baby is alive and well today.—Geo. W Spence, Holly Springs, N. C. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy always cures and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by L. S. Simmons.
